SARAH BERNHARDT, who is now in America, and at the age of 73 is making a tour of the principal cities, filling 36 theatrical engage-ments, pays tribute to Charlie Chaplin in an interview granted to a Dramatic Mirror correspondent just before leaving Paris for the United States.

"My son, Maurice, tells me that Mr. Chaplin is a most extraordinary artist both humorous and sentimental, and e of the first things I want to see in I merica is the latest Chaplin film"t b great French tragedienne declared. The statement about the artistic Standing of Chaplin was vigorously attacked by Madame Sarah's French sec-retary and English companion, both uniting in declaring that Chapiin was but a clown. This brought Madame Sarah's temper into a blast of genuine fary. "A clown, only a clown, you say, and cannot a clown be both sad and gay? What about Pagineci, Punchinello, and the dolls in the Guignol theatres? Their art is to make people cry as well as smile. Jaurice says Chaplin is a great artist, due my non is natu to piease. I shall see 16, anyself when I get to America."

The Lewis-Oliver Players closed a successful run of thirteen weeks at the Hippodrome Saturday night. A packed house was present to bid them tarewell. Mr. Milton in a splendid licment that in all probability the company would be back in two weeks was greeted with applicable by the sudience. Mr. Milton reviewed the work of the players caring their stay here and thanked Fairment theatre-goers for their interal patronage and Fairment. people in general for the hospitality extended to members of the company. The fourteenth episode of "Teg of the Ring" is at the Princess today. The title of this chapter is "The Will," which suggests that the much coveled document will be disclosed. The closing scene of the previous episode left both Dr. Lund and Peg in a pre-carious position and the incidents to follow are among the most thrilling of this unusually startling series. There is action every second. No time is wasted in posing or conversation.

Marcus, the Hindu, and Mrs. Lund, have been expected to outgeneral Dr. have been expected to outgeneral Dr. Lund, Sr., and his forces in the battle for possession of the will, but today's picture is full of surprises for both
